BANKRUPICY COURT. Patrick Phillips' Bankruptcy-Curious Disclo-

surcs.
The bankrupt in this case was a dealer in oysters in Old Hungerford Market, against whom a commission of bankruptcy was issued in 1794. Yesterday was appointed for a meeting of the creditors, for the purpose of going into an audit of the accounts, when Mr. Brooksbank, the solicitor to the commission, informed the commissioner, that, in consequence of documents, at-tested by the British Counsul in America, and other papers received only a few days since, a of electing a Senator in place of Mr. Knigh most important change would be made in the whose term expires on the 31 of March next. distribution of the residue of the bankrupt's property, which was considerable, owing to accumulations an heir at law having been discovered in the person of the son of the bank-rupt, who had fied to America about forty years ago, and died there an uncertified bankrupt.

The following are the extraordinary circumstances relating to this bankruptcy, the material facts, as regards the existence of a son, having ascertain un heir at law had been previously made, when a claim was put in by a party, and his interest was all but acknowledged, under a decree of the proper tribunal:—

Pitrick Phillips, together with another person of his calling, succeeded in obtaining a part prize of £20,000 in the lottery. Philips iuvested the chief portion of his share in houses, but became involved, and mortgaged his houses, and was afterwards declared a bankrupt in 1794, cepted, and this Seciety highly approve of the he flying to America to avoid his creditors.
